

Affirmative Exploitation

Theyre called 419ers. The term was originally assigned to Nigerians who had the ability to talk people into giving money using one of many ingenious scams. Although applied to Nigerians, the technique has become a normal part of West Africas lifestyle. Their main target: America. They work very hard to appear American and dream each night of being able to exploit Americans of their money so they can come back to their country with the respect of celebrities. They are taught from birth: If you ever meet an American, you must take their money. You must. By hook or crook. Young women look for old men, young men look for old women, and those who have the potential to be successful in life go to college, get their degree, master the English language, and have family members give their life savings so they can come to America. Once in the land of milk and honey, its only a matter of time before they work their way up the ladder into a position of trust, either in the business world or on a personal relationship level. It makes no difference; this is America. Money is everywhere. Once inside the circle of trust, they strike hard and head back to their country. U.S. laws dont apply, and the U.S. Government doesnt want to get involved. This book is an inside look at the potential unseen danger sweeping America at a dramatic pace.
